

Assume Jolene is severely hypothermic while her mother is mildly hypothermic. If no other protection from the rain is available, consider propping the rowboat up with its oars and huddling underneath until help arrives. Gently remove Jolene's wet clothes, hypothermia package her, and contact Incident Command for a helicopter evacuation of both her and her mother. Give Trish food and warm liquids; if possible, replace her wet clothes with dry or at least an external waterproof layer.
