

While the MOI appears significant, your helmet did its job and absorbed most of the kinetic energy. You lucked out a bit rappelling before fully assessing your spine for a potential injury. At two hours post event, it's clear that you do NOT have a spine injury or a concussion. It was a good decision to wear a helmet and to abandon the climb for the day.

